CNA previously came down hall and told me she was gone for the shift and that she leaves early because of school. I didn't think anything of it because staff stated she always leaves early and had prior arrangements. Resident called 911 and reported abuse. Full body assessment was completed once notified by police and resident. Upon assessment there is bright red abrasions on right upper quadrant, right forearm, and right hand. Patient stated he's not in pain. VS are WNL- Temp: 98.2 BP 130/80 RR 18 HR 96 SPOs 98%. DON, administrator, and doctor notified of incident. Family made aware. That he used another phone to call 911. There were abrasions to the abdomen and scratches to the right hand. I had the nurse do a head-to-toe assessment. I told her I would write a grievance on her, and she sat the urinal unemptied back on my table, and started screaming at me, calling me a cripple. I told her I was recording her when I really wasn't. That's when she began trying to snatch my phone from me. There was a struggle. She hit me on the arm. She scratched me on my stomach and my hand. When she took my phone, she looked through it looking for the recording I said I took of her. She then put my phone on the dresser under the TV and said now I want to see your crippled ass go get it.
